“Most 2-year-olds add up to 10 new words to their vocabulary every day.”

-BabyCenter Medical Advisory Board

By age 2, children have developed a good understanding of language and can recognize at least 200 to 300 words. They are able to comprehend and respond to who, where and what questions.

By age 3, their vocabulary improves considerably, expanding up to as many as 900 words. As they continue to grow, they will ask many questions in order to make better sense of the world around them.

The early years are critical (and the windows of opportunities close quickly). Together, let's continue to educate our elected officials and decision-makers on the importance of early childhood investment.
